"ARE THINGS AS THEY SEEM."

Is Our Civilization Played Out--- War o Baccs... The Conflict Begun.

Our citizens awoke from their slumbers yes terday morning to find upon reading the city papers that our suburbs had been the scene, the night before, of one of the bloodiest and most sanguinary struggles that has ever happened in the vicinity, with the exception, perhaps, of the gloomy November morning when Longstreet's braves were repulsed in their gallant attack on Fort Saunders. It seems that the battle was brought on by a battalion of "big buck niggers," who made an attack and drove in the skirmishers, consisting of the Knoxville police force. Policeman Harper was left for dead, with a solitary attendant, while his other assistants leaving him weltering in gore, doublequicked to town and gave the alarm. A hundred valiant young braves were soon on the warpath "and there was a sudden hunt for revolvers and loading of the same," and in a few moments "fifty or more" of them were dashing on, eager for the fray.

The insurgents, to the number of twelve or more, were intrenched in a strong position in an engine tender, armed chiefly with billets of wood and stones, but nothing daunted by this formidable array, a charge was ordered and the column of fifty, which by this time had been reenforced until it numbered a full captain's company, dashed right up and captured the enemy, taking many prisoners, and placing the remainder hors du combat. The flying squadrons of the "black brigade" were pushing in the direction of Shieldstown, but were closely followed, it being ascertained by this time that the mitrailleuse, or needle guns and chassepots, formed no part of the offensive weapons with which the retreating foe was armed. The main body of the "black brigade" escaped, but after skirmishing around, and in all the "huts" on the "line of march," nineteen of | their medical properties; but from the remarkthat color were found who would answer all the purposes for which prisoners are intended, who were brought into town as trophies of war. The roll was called and it was found that nobody was seriously hurt "on our side," but a number of gentlemen had made enough hairbreadth escapes to entitle them to a pension for life, in the shape of an Aldermanship.

The "black brigade" had one man wounded, and nineteen of the same color were captured alive. It was not seriously insisted that they were a part of the fighting brigade, but all objections arising on that score were silenced by the dexterous argument that they were all of the same color. Admiring groups were seen upon the streets vesterday, listening to the relation of valorous deeds, as they were detailed by eye-witnesses and actual participants. Whether our City Council will convene an extra session, and empower the Mayor to suspend the writ of habeas corpus, and declare martial law in view of future outbreaks, remains to be seen.

Hardee et al to R A Lamb, lot on Park street. E H Flenniken to A J Baker, lot, $400.

The mild weather of the past week has started the builders, one of the most enterprising of whom, E. H Flenniken, has purchased the large lot on west side of High street, between Main and Clinch streets, and is now putting up a brick residence upon it.

The work of excavation for the new postoffice has been completed, and building stone is being rapidly hauled, the rise in the river which prevented ferrying having subsided.

There is still a good demand for city property, but concession rather than advance in asking rates. The present is certainly an excellent time for investment.

Knoxville Wholesale Market. Review of the Produce Market for the week ending January 23, 1871.

CORRECTED BY J. W. GAUT, MARKET SQUARE.

KNOXVILLE, January 23, 1871. During the past week an active damand has prevaild for corn and oats, and some inquiry has been made or bulk meat and bacon. The general trade in proluce promises favorably. But one difficulty presents tself: Many of our producers are in the habit of ratching the market, and when they see an active deand prevails for any article of produce, they at once secome speculators, i.c. they hold for higher prices, forge ting that produce dealers have, at the expense of much hard labor and at a considerable outlay of money and time, induced orders for produce based upon prices before the active demand sprung up. See the result. The orders are either delayed or filled at prices above the views of Southern purchasers, and they are dissatisfied and withdraw their orders. Very soon we report a dull market-no demand-and there will be below their actual value as they were above under the holding up policy. Now, who is the sufferer in the end? Would it not be better for the farmer to get a fair market price for his produce-to put his grain, bacon, hay, and in fact everything he wishes to seft, out of his way, get the money and invest it? We would not be understood as dictating to the farmer, much less for him to be governed by our opinions in selling his produce to us. It is the principle we complain of. The practice of holding for higher prices when there is no reasonable probability for an advance equivalent to the loss by depreciation of weight and the interest on the money, has, as it will continue to do, depressed trade and caused a scarcity of money when it should be plenty, and nobody has made anything by it.
